Never Even Discussed

"From a visit to the Navy Department I learn that the story about scrapping the Navy Yard is without any foundation. Has never been talked of or mentioned." Thus reads a letter received at the Mayor's office this morning. Thus this wicked story about our Navy Yard is disposed of. Both Secretary Denby and Roosevelt are familiar with the fine work being done here on submarine work and more work should follow. Some of the men laid off should be and will be r eturned as work advances.

SUNSHINE LIFTS STORM BLANKET OVER N. E. STATES

(By Associated Press)

Boston, Nov. 30.—Under the first sunshine in four days New England began to thaw out today and to slough off the icy burden left by the successive storms.

The shedding process left bare the damage which will run into millions of dollars, made by falling trees, poles and wires, which prostrated electric lines, telephone, telegraph and street railway service to an extent seldom surpassed. In the case of electric and telephone companies it was announced that their difficulties were unprecedented. Railroads also suffered, the Boston & Maine, and the Boston & Albany being without wire, but through men patrols and human operators in place of the usual mechanical devices, the trains were run but little behind time.

The extent of the damage was so great that recovery will be slow. More nights of darkness are expected for nearly half a hundred towns. Street railroads in the suburbs will not be normal for a week or more and with thousands of telephone lines out of commission toll connections can be restored only in days, and individual service in weeks. The several thousand persons made idle by the closing of mills, factories, and other plants depending on electricity for power were still out of work in most cases, but with hope of an early return.

IRISH CONFERENCE TO BREAK DOWN

(By Associated Press)

London, Nov. 30.—Government circles today expressed belief that the Irish conference would break down almost immediately as a result of the difficulties which have arisen, and that the resumption of armed hostilities cannot be postponed.

The alternative settlement plan submitted by the Government to the Sinn Fein representatives last evening included the necessity for a definite undertaking by the Sinn Fein to take the oath of allegiance to the Crown. The Sinn Fein has many objections to the Government's new plan but eventually if it will agree to discuss it, it will not now give its consent to the oath of allegiance proving, it is stated, too great a barrier.

COMMISSIONERS HEAR CHARGES AGAINST OFFICER

The Board of Police Commissioners held a hearing on Tuesday evening on the charges of Col. South, U. S. M. C., that Police Officer Timothy J. Connors used unnecessary force in handling the crowd at the Tiger-Marine football game on Armistice Day and that he struck one of the marine players. The hearing was attended by all that could crowd into the court room and hundreds in the corridors.

The three commissioners were seated on the judge's bench and Colonel South appeared in support of the charges, while Attorney S. W. Emery appeared for Officer Connors. Both sides presented a large number of witnesses. The contention of the prosecution was that the officer had no business on the football field, that he struck Corporal Hooper unnecessarily and that he used more force than was necessary to keep the crowd back.

The defense maintained that the officer had a hard proposition to handle in keeping the crowd back and that when he entered the field it was at the request of the referee of the game and that his action in breaking up the fight between the players on both sides, alone prevented a riot as the feeling was growing worse every minute. That the officer did not use any unnecessary force or hit anybody but did just what he should have done to maintain order. That after he broke up the fight the game proceeded right through to the finish without any more fighting on the part of either team. That there was a condition of ill feeling evident through the entire game which extended to the side lines and that one marine officer had used insulting remarks to the officer and when taken from the field had called for the marines to come to his aid.

Col. South opened the hearing with an explanation of his charges and called as his first witness, former Lieut. Moneypenny, U. S. M. C., who testified that he saw two players mixing it up and saw the officer run out on the field and hit the marine from behind, knocking him down, and then immediately turn and leave the field. He admitted that there had been some fighting but there was no more after the officer came on the field.

Col. South called Dr. Feuerhan of this city, who he said had offered to testify, but he was not in the court room and later sent word that he was ill.

Corporal Hooper, a member of the team, testified that he was exchanging blows with a Tiger player when he was knocked down but did not know who hit him.

Captain McCann, U. S. M. C., testified that he was some distance away from the spot where the incident took place but saw the officer dash out on the field, strike a man and then run back into the crowd.

Gunner Wallace, U. S. M. C., testified along the same lines with some added information as to his experience in handling men, and admitted that there was no more fighting after the officer took the field.

Corporal Flippen testified that he saw Hooper and a Tiger player fighting and saw the officer come from the side lines, strike Hooper and knock him down.

In the specification filed by Col. South, Flippen admitted that he had signed a statement that the officer had beat Hooper over the head with a blackjack, but he admitted on the stand that this was not true; he had used his hands and that he did not see any blackjack. He was considerably confused but agreed that his statement on the stand was correct and not his signed statement.

Lieut. Pierce, U. S. M. C., coach of the football team, testified that there had been some fighting and that the men were squaring off, when the officer ran on the field and hit the marine player, knocking him down. After that, he (Pierce) had gone on the field and called both captains together and warned them that if there was any more fighting he would call the marine team from the grounds.

Corporal Within saw the argument and saw the officer hit Hooper.

Private Cooper, captain of the Marine team saw several blows struck before the officer stopped the fight.

The first witness for the defense was Councilman H. Curtis Matthews, Jr., who was field judge of the game and in a position to see the trouble. He said that there was considerable fighting and that the situation was growing worse every minute. He said that when the officer went on the field there were three or four men engaged in fight, one right near the side lines and the officer had run out and stopped it. He said that he thought that the officer was absolutely justified in using the force he did, as there was fear of a riot and the officer acted just in time to stop it.

Ralph Brackett, referee of the game said that there was more or less feeling from the start with scraps after every scrimmage, and that conditions were getting beyond his control. When he saw the fight going on he nodded to Officer Connors to come on the field and stop it. He said the officer simply pushed between the two men fighting and pushed them apart with force enough so that one man fell over. He admitted that the game was getting away from him and that the officer had acted just right.

Ralph H. McCarthy, a spectator, said that there was fear of a general fight, that marines around where he was standing were threatening to go on the field and "clean them up" and he thought that the officer used good judgment in stopping it at the start, and in his opinion he did not use any unnecessary force. He thought the situation had gotten beyond the control of the officials of the game.

Thomas Pilgrim, fullback of the Tigers, described the hard-feeling that was cropping out and how he had been tripped by an officer while running with the ball along the side lines. He testified that he had seen drinking going on.

Arthur Flanigan, spectator, testified that he was standing behind Officer Connors who was having a hard time keeping the crowd back and the game was getting to be pretty rough. When the fighting started the officer entered the field and broke between a Tiger and Marine pushing them apart.

William Gamester and Thomas Lynchy testified along the same line. Henry Weyer thought that the game might have developed into a riot if the officer had not nipped it in the bud when he did.

Harry Dowdell and Fred Griffin, spectators, testified that they saw the fighting and saw the officer go in and jump between the two men and push them apart and that the fighting stopped after that.

Morris Hurd, Cornelius Driscoll and John Dowd testified as to the feeling that existed and to Officer Connors pushing the men apart.

Officer Timothy J. Connors made a fine impression on the stand. He testified that he was 29 years old and that he had been 17 months on the police force. He and Officer McLean were on duty at the game and there were no side ropes up on his side, with about 600 people to keep back. The game was getting very rough and there was a growing feeling in the front of him and in answer to the motion of Referee Brackett, he went on the field and pushed the two players who were fighting apart with considerable force. That he remained on the field until the whistle started another play. He went back to the side lines and began pushing the crowd back. Ordered three officers to move back with the rest of the crowd and one marine gunner refused to move, saying that he gave orders and did not take them, and then calling the officer a vile name, dared him to put him off the field. He grabbed him and took him off, and the gunner called for the marines to come to his aid, but civilians stepped in and helped the police officer. He turned the marine officer over to his friends, although he had been drinking, and went back to prevent any disturbance. Col. South in cross examination insisted on having the officer's name and the details of the assault to Officer Connors.

Chief Hurley testified that Officer Connors had never been complained of since he went on the force and he considered him a good officer.

After arguments by both sides, Chairman Pickering said that the commissioners would take the matter under consideration and would announce the decision later.

RUSSIAN ORPHANS FOR BUENOS AIRES

(By Associated Press)

Paris—One hundred Russian orphans, 75 boys and 25 girls between the ages of eight and 12, arrived in Paris a few days ago en route for Buenos Aires, which will be their future home. They have been adopted by Argentine families.

Recruited among the frontiers of Ukrania and Galicia, one of the worst war-torn, devastated countries in Europe, the youngsters have seen four offensives and counter offensives roll over their country, revolutions, murder, pillage, arson and death.

In their short span of life they have looked upon more horrors than many who live to a ripe old age. And their eyes were sad, their voices subdued and even when partaking of the hearty meal placed before them at one of the Paris Orphan asylums, they spoke in hushed tones and glanced nervously about.

Then one of the attendants threw a football into the yard. None of them had ever seen a football before and they edged in the bouncing leather until one of the hardiest souls among the boys gave it a kick.

Then minutes later, shouts, shrieks of joy, resounding whacks of boots meeting the leather of the football, could be heard emanating from the once silent yard.

The horrors of the past six years were momentarily forgotten.

KITTERY

Kittery, Nov. 30.—Ladies' Aid of the 1st Methodist church are preparing for a Christmas sale and entertainment to be held Dec. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Grant have returned to their home in New York after passing several days as guests of his aunts, Misses Edith and Fannie Remick.

Mr. and Mrs. George Howes were the holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Simson.

Regular meeting of Eastern Star this evening. There will be a visitation of the Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Maine, Miss Mabel Deshon of Portland, Me. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock in the lower hall.

Miss Esther Rogers who passed the holiday season at her home here, has returned to Pawtucket, R. I.

The Ladies' Aid of the 2nd Methodist church held an all day session today at the home of Mrs. Ernest Higgins, Love Lane, to sew for their Christmas sale on Dec. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Remick have returned to their home in Lynn, Mass., after passing several days at his old home here.

Frank Jordan of Badger's Island left on Monday evening for San Diego, Cal., to make his future home there.

This storm just over was a bad one we all thought, but after reading the Boston papers we realize Kittery did not suffer as much as other places. We had our electric lights, our telephone service and our P. K. & Y. and their gallant crew, which helped those of us who had to get in and out of Kittery. Also after their big red plow passed through, those living along the trolley line had a fine broad path to travel in.

The Riverside Reading Club will hold their meeting at the Rice Public Library Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Tonight, Strand Theatre—Kittery, George Walsh in "Dynamite Allen." Don't miss it. Also a rollicking comedy and latest news.

The regular meeting of Kittery Grange will be held Thursday evening when the third and fourth degree will be given to a class of candidates. Officers for the coming year will be elected. A supper will be served at six o'clock.

Those who braved the severe storm of Sunday morning were many times repaid for their efforts, for Rev. John Arters D. D., presented a sermon that will live long in the memory of each one who was indeed grateful for having attended the service.

It was only by accident that Rev. Mr. Arters occupied the pulpit, for, owing to the storm he was prevented from appearing elsewhere, and, as Rev. Mr. Staples put it, "What was their loss is our gain." The speaker took for his text, Ezekiel 47:9 "And everything shall live whether the river cometh," and Mr. Arters gave four reasons for being interested in Ezekiel's rivers of water, all the time emphasizing the fact that salvation is even more free than that great commodity, water. To those who disbelieve in foreign missions, it might be well to watch this fact, that of the four Chinese conferees at Washington, two are members of the Methodist church and two are Christians, while of the four Japanese, one is a member of the Methodist church, another is president of the Tokio Y. M. C. A. and a third is a Christian who recently donated 50,000 yen to the Sunday School Convention at Tokio. Many things should be traced back to Ezekiel's river rather than having the blame placed where it is. The always-healing virtue of the waters in connection with imagination, memory, understanding and affection, was ably presented by the preacher. Rev. Mr. Arters is always welcome to our community and church and we trust that his presence may be felt many times in the future. He gave the opening address at the South Eliot Methodist church this morning for the Epworth League Convention.

HISTORICAL COLLECTION TAKEN FROM NAVY YARD

After being located nearly four score years at the Charlestown navy yard the museum and library have been moved to Annapolis and their transfer means the yard loses two of its notable attractions to visitors.

In 1812 a number of officers attached to the yard, besides many citizens of Boston saw the need of a reading room for men who returned from long voyages. It was here that they could swap stories and tell of happenings in foreign countries. A number of prominent Bostonians were made honorary members among them Daniel Webster, Harrison Grey Otis, Stephen Phillips, Rufus Choate, John Quincy Adams, Caleb Cushing and Bishop Fenwick.

Soon the room became a place where the members adorned the walls with all sorts of curios gathered from distant lands. In a small time it resembled a small sized museum and permission was secured from the secretary of the navy to use the adjoining room as a library. A charter was granted by the state and the library was filled with books. Under a by-law no one except members of the society could withdraw books, but as all have died the books remained on the shelves without being disturbed.

The museum and library were located on the second floor of Building No. 5 just inside the Water street gate, and frequently the library has been used as a court-martial room.

Starting with a few models of ships as decorations at the time it was of interest not only to the men of the navy but visitors.

The models of many ships built at the yard were found at the Museum. There was a model of the drydock at the yard containing the model of the U. S. S. Levant which sailed for the Pacific in 1858 and was never heard from. There was a model also of a ship made of Bones. This was the work of a prisoner captured in the war of 1812. He saved the bones from the rations he received until he had sufficient to make a full-rigged ship. There were Chinese guns more than 300 years old. There was a model also, of a Chinese ship made in 1800.

In addition to these exhibits there was a "knee" of the Virginia which stood on the stocks at the navy yard from 1820 to 1873. This ship was never launched. She became obsolete and when broken up a good sized rock was found embedded in a piece of wood that was placed on exhibition in the museum. From the Dardanelles were exhibits of stone cannon balls fired by the natives from stone mortars and it is said that these cannon balls were fired from the stone cannon with sufficient force to knock down a house.

There was a piece of wood also from the house in which Columbus was born at Genoa and two vases made from pieces of the Constitution which she was repaired at the yard in 1821.

On the walls of the museum were many valuable paintings, prints and pictures. Perhaps the most valuable painting in the collection was that of Dick Levy, who was a quartermaster at the yard in 1812, and for which $1000 was offered. Still another exhibit was a box containing human bones on top of which rested a skull. The box was marked "Bones of men killed at Bunker Hill" and were dug up not far from the building; a piece of the fence that marked the "dead line" at Andersonville was another relic.

EXHUME BODY OF HEIR TO PORT. THRONE

(By Associated Press)

Naples—The Duchess of Oporto, formerly Mrs. Nevada Hayes Chapman, has had the body of the Duke of Oporto, who was heir to the throne of Portugal, exhumed here with fitting religious ceremonies.

The body, which was found to be in a remarkable state of preservation, has now been encased in a massive vacuum casket adorned with gold trimmings and will be transported to Lisbon as soon as disturbances there have subsided.

LEVIATHAN TO BE REFITTED BY SHIPPING BOARD

New York, Nov. 30.—For the second time within three years, American engineering skill has triumphed over obstacles finding to prevent the giant steamship Leviathan, the former pride of Germany's merchant fleet from going to pieces.

The first time was in 1917, when the great 54,000 ton liner interned here at the beginning of the war, was wilfully damaged by her own engineers to prevent her from being used as a transport for American and allied soldiers.

American engineers repaired the damage and made her ready for a trip within a few weeks. Her record for the war was 19 voyages on which she carried going and coming 184,263 American soldiers. Signing of the armistice laid her up.

Then the United States Shipping Board, operators for the United States government, began to plan to restore her to the trans-Atlantic trade as the premier American passenger liner. Gutting her for troops, had stripped her of her former palatial cabins, saloons and dining halls. These had to be restored.

Her German builders were called and asked for a set of blue print plans giving details of her construction. They consented to provide the plans—for $1,000,000.

With an estimated cost of between $7,000,000 and $10,000,000, forcing them for restoration, the Shipping Board declined the offer and decided to make its own plans. A small army of engineers and draftsmen were put to work to ascertain the details of her construction.

Partitions were removed in part, floors ripped up in certain sections, miles of telephone, electric light and signal wires were traced, equal miles of pipe lines controlling heating and plumbing systems were followed, plates from keel to hurricane deck were bored into and measured. The Leviathan was at least "put on paper" to the most minute detail.

Consequently when bids were asked of shipbuilders last month to restore the ship to her original grandeur and with additional facilities and accommodations, the Shipping Board was able to submit to each bidder a complete set of plans and specifications. These bids will be opened Dec. 29.

Under plans now prepared for the bidders she will be entirely restored a befitting her size. The grandeur of her original great dining saloons, lounges, smoke rooms and libraries will be refitted and improved upon. An immense tiled and marbled plunge bath with accompanying rooms for Turkish, electric and other baths will be one of her attractions. Suites once designed as personal quarters for his former Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany will be retained—but suggestions of royalty will be replaced by luxurious fittings desired by modern democracy.

Who will operate the Leviathan when restored to service and under which house flag she will sail is yet to be determined by the Shipping Board.

OVER-POPULATION A BIG QUESTION

San Francisco, Nov. 30.—Educational work will bind together the peoples of the Pacific, it was decided at a series of conferences held recently under the auspices of the Pan Pacific Union in Honolulu, Hawaii, Hon. Henry Ford, honorary director of the Union. Leading scientists, educators and editors of Pacific lands attended the meetings.

Summing up the work of the conference, Mr. Ford, while here recently, said it was decided that the press was the great medium of educating the people of the Pacific as to each other's problems and ambitions and in bringing them into better understanding.

"Through the Pan Pacific Union, which is now supported by all the governments about the greatest of oceans, the scientists are arranging to study the scientific problems of the Pacific and to seek their proper solutions," Mr. Ford said. "Already they have found the remedy for leprosy, which is now being wiped out. They are taking up the study of fish food supply of the Pacific with the assurance that with scientific propagation and protection of fish in Pacific waters the Pacific Ocean will supply sufficient fish food, preserved, to feed the world. The problem of saturation, or the knowledge of just how many people a country may naturally support, is to be taken up by the Pan Pacific Union and a conference will be called to discuss the subject. Two-thirds of the world's population live adjacent to Pacific lands and the immigration problem has become an acute one. Japan allows but 1,500 Chinese to migrate to her shores annually and California does not wish this many Japanese, while Hawaii cries for thousands more Oriental laborers for her sugar cane fields.

"It has been pointed out by some of the scientists that the United States cannot support a population of more than a quarter of a billion living according to the standard of the Anglo Saxon, while she might easily support a billion population living according to the standard of the Japanese and twice as many if the Chinese standard of living is adopted. Science steps in and says that perhaps means may be found to make the soil twice as productive as it is at present, which would, of course, solve the Japanese immigration problem for another generation and banish famine and starvation from China for some time to come. They point out that Java, with a population of six millions a century ago, suffered from famine and over-population. The Dutch stepped in with scientific methods of agriculture, with the result that today Java, with a population of thirty-six millions, is threatened with a serious shortage of labor.

"These are some of the problems discussed at the Pan Pacific Union conferences. The heads of all Pacific countries are officers of the Union and it is even hoped that next summer a conference may be held in Honolulu of the presidents and premiers of Pacific lands.

"A Pan Pacific school of journalism, located at the ocean's cross roads, is one of the recommendations of the Press Congress and this may be established to train men of all languages on the ocean in modern newspaper methods."

ENGLISH TAX ON CIGARS OFF

(By Associated Press)

London—Aided popularity by wartime economy and high taxation, cigars are once more coming into their own.

Since the chancellor of the Exchequer withdrew the 60 per cent ad valorem duty on Havana cigars five months ago, the number released from bond has exceeded by 10,613,000, that for the same period last year, says P. Norman Budd, secretary of the National Union of Retail Tobacconists.

The Exchequer has gained 10,816 pounds in revenue from the omitted duty and tobacconists say all signs point to a further increase in the cigar consumption.

Why Guess About It— When You Can Know About It?

Suppose a guide said—

"This way there's a safe and pleasant road to your destination, with no risks or troubles on the way," and—

"That way there's a road that a good many have stalled on and turned back from, but you may get through."

Which would you take?

Postum is a thoroughly agreeable and satisfying meal-time drink, and you're sure that it's perfectly safe for health. Coffee contains drug qualities which disturb and harm the health of many."

Postum or coffee? Which road?

Why guess when you can know?

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

A Seasonal Responsibility.

The coasting season is at hand and this means that children in most New England cities and towns will be more or less exposed to danger until the snow disappears in the spring. Many New England cities are so hilly as to afford good coasting on many of the streets, while there are few so level as to place this delightful winter sport entirely out of the question.

And while there has always been or less danger in coasting in city streets, this is greater than ever today, owing to the great number of automobiles in use and the fact that they are operated all winter long. They are not stowed away when sleighing comes, as wagons are, but are kept going right through the winter season. They pass over street intersections frequently and in many instances at high speed, and where the streets are hilly and used for coasting one does not need to be told that the danger is great.

This places a responsibility upon parents which they should not attempt to evade. The chief of police of a hilly New England city has come out with a public statement to parents calling their attention to their duty in the premises. He says it is impossible for the officers to guard all points of danger all the time and that it is the duty of parents to safeguard their children when these are allowed to coast in the streets. Thus early in the season there have been many narrow escapes and at least one fatality, and in the absence of due care there is liable to be a pitiful list of maimings and killings by spring. The children if allowed free rein coast not only over intersections where automobiles are frequently passing, but across trolley railways where they are in danger of being run over by the cars.

In most cities coasting is permitted on certain streets where there is the least danger, and forbidden on other streets. This is a good arrangement, but nothing can remove the danger entirely. Many boys will take a chance on forbidden ground, and it is the duty of parents to co-operate with the police in keeping the risks at the minimum.

Coasting is one of the winter delights of childhood, and one that every child should be permitted to enjoy, but no child should knowingly be allowed to risk his life by sliding into the pathway of automobiles and trolley cars. The little ones lack the judgment to safeguard themselves, and their elders should not attempt to dodge the responsibility that comes to them in in this connection.

It is a common sight to see boys and girls taking desperate chances during the coasting season. Narrow escapes are greeted with hilarious laughter, and in many instances the coaster sensible enough to sense the danger and guard against it is chided for his timidity. Thus matters go on until some one is killed or seriously injured. Such a happening quiets things down for a few days, but the tragedy is soon forgotten and the recklessness is resumed.

Now, at the very opening of the season, is the time for parents to resolve to keep the danger at the minimum. It will be great enough when fathers and mothers and the police have done their best to protect the lives and limbs of the youthful merry-makers, who are entitled to all the fun that snow and sleds can provide, so long as this is enjoyed under proper conditions. Under all other conditions it should be denied, cruel as the inhibition may seem. In coasting, as in other and more important matters, it is better to be safe than sorry.

NEW MOTOR VEHICLE LAW WILL BE IN EFFECT ON JANUARK 1

The new motor vehicle law which will go into effect January 1, 1922, provides for raising a larger revenue for state highway maintenance than the present law. The fees all along the line for all classes of motor vehicles, and for drivers' license being increased. Not only that but a radical change is made in determining the amount of registration fee for a motor vehicle.

At the present time the registration fee is determined by the rated horsepower of the motor. Under the new law it is based on the gross weight of the vehicle and the load it is designed to carry. Thus:

For a passenger automobile, the fee is 60 cents per 100 pounds gross weight plus the load. The automobile owner may determine the size of the check to send for his registration plates by adding to the weight of the car 150 pounds for each adult the car is supposed to carry and multiplying the result by 60. This gives the fee for the registration. The minimum fee is $15.

The fee for a truck depends upon the equipment. If a truck is equipped with pneumatic tires the fee is 50 cents per 100 pounds gross weight of vehicle and load, with a minimum fee of $20. If it has solid rubber tires the fee is 85 cents per 100 pounds and the minimum fee is $30, while if it has neither pneumatic nor other hard tires the fee is $1.00 per hundred. A vehicle equipped with two or more solid rubber tires is regarded the same as one equipped all around.

Various restrictions are placed on trucks and tractors as to the amount of dead weight that permitted to be carried. Under the present law there is no distinction between passenger cars and trucks. The maximum weight of a vehicle and load allowed to be carried on the highway is ten tons. A maximum length and width are also prescribed.

Thereafter, operators of motorcycles will have to register side cars and carry two front lights, the same as automobiles. All varieties of trailers or motor vehicles must be registered.

Fees for the renewal of a driving license, either private operators' or professional chauffeur's are increased from $1 to $2. The fees for original licenses remain the same, $3 and $5 respectively.

A pamphlet of the new law is being mailed out to each applicant for 1922 registration and license.

The teeth of the law have been sharpened and many provisions are more drastic than under the present law.

FORTY YEARS AGO IN PORTSMOUTH

Items of Interest from the Chronicle for November, 1881.

Two hundred and three books were taken from the Public Library the opening day. The rooms were visited by a large number of people, especially in the evening.

The Norfolk Jubilee Singers gave a fine concert to a very large and well-pleased audience in Franklin Theatre Sunday evening, they not being able to occupy Music Hall on account of some accident to the heating apparatus. The troupe is a really good one and merits liberal patronage.

On Sunday several degenerate youths fished from the wharves for mates. It was no day for fishes.

The schooner Governor Goodwin sailed from Deon's Wharf on Sunday with a cargo of fish for New York. She will go from there to the West Indies and be engaged in the fruit trade during the winter.

One of the former overseers in the Kearsarge Mills, and a number of operatives are now at work in the Atlantic Mills at Newburyport. A large proportion of the people formerly employed in the Kearsarge Mills have procured work in other cities.

It is hinted that a "still hunt" is being conducted by out of town detectives into the cause of death of the fisherman whose corpse was found in one of the docks on Sunday morning some weeks ago.

The whistle at Eldredge's Brewery is now sounded at 6.30 o'clock every morning to compensate the workmen of the western part of the city for the loss of the Kearsarge Mills horn, on the dinging of which they have depended for notice to go to work during so many years.

PETITE RED BOOK

The National Mechanics & Traders Bank have issued a cute little Red Book which contains the 1922 calendar leaves for postage stamps, telephone numbers, and identification card. The little book is handsomely bound in red imitation leather. Its dimensions are 2 inches by 1 1-2 and will most conveniently fit into a pocket book.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ENJOYS SOCIAL

The Epworth League enjoyed a pleasing and unique social and entertainment in the vestry Tuesday evening with over fifty present.

A humorous sketch "Pocahontas" was well acted by twelve of the League members. A very interesting talk on the Pilgrims was given by Mrs. Tasker. Piano solos by the Misses Tasker were also features of the evening. "The Magic Mirror," depicting thirteen types of girls was an especially pretty affair. Refreshments of cocoa and fancy wafers were served.

For an hour everyone enjoyed the games and ten o'clock came all too soon. The whole affair was in charge of Miss Sibyl H. Cheney, fourth vice president of the League, to whom much credit is due for the fine entertainment and pleasant sociability.

FAREWELL GATHERING

Given for Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nicholson.

A farewell party for John E. Nicholson, Master of Kittery Grange, and Mrs. Nicholson, was given Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Burns of Williams avenue, Kittery, when thirty grange members and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson met to express their regret at the departure of this popular young couple from Kittery. The evening was passed with games, musical selections and with much sociability and all enjoyed the occasion.

Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, fancy cake and cocoa was served by the hostess and her assistants. The pleasing incident occurred when Mr. Burns, in a few appropriate remarks, presented Mr. Nicholson with a leather traveling bag in behalf of friends present, and which was received with much pleasure.

Miss Mildred Gerry, master of the ladies' degree team of the grange, presented Mrs. Nicholson with a handsome framed picture, in behalf of the team and for which she expressed heartfelt thanks. The party broke up at a late hour and Mr. and Mrs. Burns will be remembered as exponents of ideal hospitality.

Mr. Nicholson has been Master of Kittery Grange since last spring and all the members regret that he has left Kittery. While here he was a pattern worker on the navy yard and left for Lynn, Mass., this morning where he is to go into business. Mrs. Nicholson will leave also for Lynn very soon.

ELIOT PEOPLE COMPLAIN OF LIGHT SERVICE

Want Lines Extended and the Rates Fixed by the Commission.

A complaint signed by George O. Emery and ten other residents of Eliot was filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Maine on Tuesday against the Kittery Electric Light Company alleging inadequate service.

The complainants ask that the Kittery Electric Light company be ordered to extend its lines over such portions of the town of Eliot not already covered by its transmission lines as may seem just and equitable, and that such rates may be fixed for the services thereof as the Public Utilities Commission may deem necessary and just in the premises.

The complaint is signed by the following residents of Eliot: F. L. Harding, farmer; W. L. Hobbs, farmer; C. Edward Parthett, farmer; Albert Lord, farmer; Frank H. Plummer, plumber; Chester C. Frost, farmer; Frank Wakefield, farmer; Charles A. Hill, farmer; Walter W. Rowe, farmer; Hence I. Tracy, farmer, George A. Emery, farmer.

PERSONALS

Mrs. George M. King was a recent Boston visitor.

Clarence G. Bates has moved from Pearl street to Congress street.

Wyatt E. Berry and family have moved from Bridge street to State street, corner Court Place.

Mrs. Fanny S. Fernald, who has been employed for the past nine years as bookkeeper at the store of N. H. Beane & Co., has resigned and will conclude her duties in two weeks.

TO THE PUBLIC

As a democrat and member of the Democratic City Committee I, with the committee, made earnest efforts to obtain the consent of members of the party to become candidates for the offices to be voted for at the municipal election.

We met with the usual difficulties. With a political party in dominant a plentiful supply of candidates seek the nominations but when the party is a minority, the nominations go a begging. Yielding to the unanimous vote of the caucus and against my own personal desires, I have consented to be the candidate for Mayor in order to insure a full ticket of the party for the coming election.

Without intention of making any personal canvass for the office this position is taken in the belief that so long as party nominations are made for the municipal offices the minority should present a ticket to the voters.

An Apology to New Hampshire

If the highly successful advertising in Massachusetts created a temporary shortage of Marksman Cigars in the "Granite State," we ask your forgiveness. Increased facilities have enabled us to extend both our advertising and supplies to New Hampshire. "Marksman" Cigars were worth waiting for. Your dealer now has them by the box, loose, and in packs of five.

a real good cigar for 5 cents

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it? A full-sized cigar, high grade wrapper, excellent filler, made to uphold our 30 years' reputation—A lifetime's experience, a well organized factory, big resources and a firm confidence in the judgment of smokers, make it possible for us to produce "THE MARKSMAN."

To the man who knows cigars we say make this test: light a "MARKSMAN," take a pull—taste and smell its goodness, then take a pull of any other cigar costing up to ten cents, and you will agree that—

TO THE TRADE:
The rush for Marksman at 5 cents has caused a temporary shortage of the favorite packs of five. If you are caught short, your customer will, we are sure, take them loose. If the present rush reduces your stock of Marksman, telephone your jobber or call Main 7500.

CONCLUSION OF MEMORIAL DISCOURSE

Church and Parish

Like all the old New England Churches the parish has been an important and integral part of this religious body. At first the parish and the town were identical and all votes on church matters were made in town meeting. Later the rate payers were divided both in the old and new church buildings pews were sold and owned outright, and the support of worship came from taxes assessed on these pews. Gradually the pews came into the possession of the parish by gift or otherwise. In the meantime the system of taxes and rentals prevailed. In 1819 when the every member canvass for parish support as well as for benevolences was begun, a budget was adopted to cover all the expenses of church and parish. This included the support of the Sunday School, as well as of the services and of the up-keep connected with the chapel and parish house. These had for a long time depended upon uncertain voluntary contributions, as nothing was available for their use from pew rentals. The Wardens of the parish have always had control of the meeting house and have been responsible for the minister's salary and the expenses connected with services in the church building.

In 1816 the North Church Corporation was formed and holds the chapel and parish house, the parsonage, the poor fund, and any funds that have been designated for the "North Church." Perfect harmony has existed between the two corporations and often the same men serve on both bodies. In 1911 the charter was changed, making all members of the church over twenty-one years of age members of the corporation.

As to many phases of our life there has been little reason to distinguish between church and parish. During all these years there has been hearty cooperation in all material affairs, and much fellowship in the more spiritual features of the church life. Many people have been of the type of the Centurian of whom it was said, "He loveth our nation and himself built us our synagogue." Many such persons in the eighteenth century took what was known as the "Half way Covenant," a custom that prevailed down to the coming of Dr. Putnam. It allowed men of upright life to have a definite, formal relationship with the church. Occasionally we find a case like that of John Langdon who moved on to full membership, but the tendency was for people to remain satisfied with the partial step. This custom in part accounts for the relatively smaller membership of the church which marked the eighteenth century.

The Glebe Land

The deed of 1710 conveyed to the "Church Wardens of this parish" and their successors "fifte acres of Glebe land." Thirty-eight acres of it was thus to be taken, that is to say, ye full tenth part of ye fresh marsh lying at the head of Strawberry Bank Creeke, and that being ascertained and bounded to take the remainder of the thirty-eight acres next adjoining to ye said marsh." The still extant name "The Creek" enables us to locate the marsh land and Islington Street was opened up through the pasture land which extended toward the powder house. This was rented until 1832 when it was divided and the leases for nine hundred and ninety-nine years sold. A plan of the parceling out is still extant. The proceeds were used to build a parsonage for Mr. Rogers. It being the house now numbered 148 on Pleasant Street. The more valuable parcel of land was the twelve acres upon which an important part of the city is now built. It formed a rectangle, the north side extending up Congress Street beyond the Kearsarge, and the east side extending down Pleasant Street to the Universalist Church. It included the ministers' three acres of corn land enclosed in palisades.

At a town meeting the twentieth of April, 1735 it was voted: "that the ministers' field commonly given for the use of the ministry be by consent of Mr. Roggers our present minister, improved for house lots for peopling the Town, that the advantage wch arises thereby be to the benefit of the ministry, reserving a convenience for a meeting house, court house, Alms house, & Burying Place." Fifty-one lots duly numbered were laid out, fifty by eighty feet. No man could have more than one lot and agreed to build on it within three years. These lots were not sold but leased in good old English fashion for nine hundred and ninety-nine years. A package of the original leases are in our possession. Lot number one, just back of this church, was leased to Richard Wibird in 1769. The yellowed lease, after recording the origin of the glebe land, grants to Richard Wibird lot numbered one "for the full space and term of nine hundred and ninety-nine years to be fully compleated and ended," for which he was to pay "yearly, each year and every year, fifteen shillings" which was to be applied to the use of the parish. "At the end and expiration of the aforesaid term" he "shall quietly and peacably surrender up the premises to the church wardens of the said parish for the time being."

The other leases are of like tenor. In 1729 the parish votes to better maintain its rights and secure rents on the Glebe land lots, according to the intent of the original document. In 1733 it votes to have a collector for the rents. In 1735 the vote is to eject any in possession without leases. In 1752 it is noted that the rents from the Glebe is sixty-nine pounds, twelve shillings. In 1762 the rentals amounted to ninety pounds. The collection of rentals was not carefully attended to. A committee appointed in 1789 reported the full amount due on the leases for back rents, and what sums would be received in full for the unexpired term of the leases. Many of the tenants settled in full in 1792, including Samuel Penhallow who held the lease to lot number one, of which we have spoken, the transaction being duly endorsed on the lease. Mr. Brewster reports that in 182 settlements were made again for rent, but he had never learned that quit-claim deeds had been given to any.

I append an extract from a letter written from Portsmouth, Nov. 3, 1761, by John Sherburne to his brother who was stationed in England. The letter was carried by young Mr. Langdon, a brother-in-law, late out of college, who is taking a tour of England. The letter refers to a claim for the Glebe land forward by the recently organized Episcopal church:

"As the Church of England in this Town are stirring up mischief against our Parish, relating to the Glebe Land and having employed Jaffe Nevin who went with the mast fleet to get advice thereabout and I spoke one of the Wardens of said Parish, and so good an opportunity presenting and the Bearer (who also being one of our Parish) I could not prevail with myself to be silent in the affair, and therefore have taken the freedom to inclose you a copy of the draft with Mr. Parker's remarks, which I asked the favour of your getting the best advice upon that in case the Church brings an action out so that we may know how to proceed. Our Parish have always been in possession (its 120 years since the Grant) of the premises & the Church of England never was. There is more than forty buildings on part of the land which pay a yearly rent to the Parish therefor.

P. S. What cash may be wanted to pay for the advice (wch I pray may be from the best hands) on the inclosed Mr. Moffatt has promised me to supply you with wch I presume won't be more than four or five Guineas."

Mr. Sherburne, writing after Mr. Nevin's return, says regarding the Glebe affair: "As nothing transpired from Mr. Nevin relative thereto, I presume he met with poor encouragement." As we find nothing further in any records it seems probable that the matter was dropped.

The Era of Organizations

In the trying days that followed the Revolution religion had not flourished and the end of the century was marked by lethargy, indifference and death. Early in the nineteenth century marked change took place. The church awakened with a new sense of responsibility for spreading the gospel at home and in lands afar. Home and foreign missionary societies were organized and these offered to the churches new objects of interest and called out new local organizations. One of the earliest of these was the Juvenile Society whose primary object was the education of heathen youth. It was organized in 1817. Children from other churches at first attended. I educated one heathen youth bearing the name of Nathan Parker, pastor of the South Church, as well as on bearing the name of Israel Putnam pastor of the North church. Later this was called the Mite Society. In this work it worked "for Soldier" aid. It helped build the chapel. For a period it was a girls' sewing society. In time it took the name of the Rogers Mission Circle and once more offered to both boys and girls an opportunity for instruction in missions, for helpful service at home and abroad, and for social life under the care of the church. It is the oldest society of its kind in the land, and has a membership of some one hundred and twenty.

Women's societies followed soon after. A branch of the Female Cent Union to aid home missions was formed in 1820 and the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society about the same time, both during Dr. Putnam's ministry. The Seaman's Friend Society under the leadership of Miss Mary Rogers was formed in 1837 and its timely and gracious ministrations gave to the North Church one of its most devoted supporters, Charles E. Myers, who lighted the first Christmas tree in this city. In 1845 a new social spirit developed among the younger group. The need for the education of ministers for the frontier work gave a name and object to this group, organized as The Education Society. Afternoon meetings, with suppers to which the young men came, made it popular. It continued until 1871 when it closed its existence after the death of Eliza Thompson, its leading officer. The Box Club, organized in 1804 for the purpose of helping secure a new chapel, deserves to have its name recorded in history for its effective service. In 1903 in view of the pressing need for a parish house the name and method was revived, and continued to serve until 1916, long after the new building appeared. Inasmuch Circle of Elm's Daughters, mothered in the early days by that devoted woman, Mrs. Ryder, was a notable feature of church life for some thirty years, up to 1920. A Maternal Association existed from 1834 to 1854 which seems to have met quarterly and which provided books helpful for training young people.

At present the Women's Guild conducts the social life of the parish and unifies all branches of the women's work, having not only the foreign and home missionary interests in its care, but also the Mothers' Club, organized in 1895 by Mrs. Thayer; the Christian Service League, and the Reconstruction Unit, the last two groups meeting in the evening.

A Young People's Society was formed in 1850. Later, for one brief period it existed as a Christian Endeavor Society. It continues as the one medium for the expression of the worship service, and social life of the young people. Since the fall of 1898 a men's club, bearing the name of one of the church's great laymen, John Langdon, has met monthly during the winter season. It is a parish club for the promotion of helpful fellowship, the consideration of subjects of general interest, and for fostering the things that pertain to good citizenship.

Before eighteen hundred the church work had been carried on by preaching, pastoral visitation, the catechizing of children from house to house, and with the weekly lecture in the afternoon. With the revival of interest in the churches there followed the gradual establishment of a social meeting of prayer and conference, called the "prayer meeting." In February 1819 it was voted "that one hour on Monday evening of every week be observed by this church in the vestry, as a season of prayer." In November of the same year it was voted "that the third Monday evening in the month only, there be held a meeting of the church for prayer, and that other Monday evenings the brethren hold a meeting in the inner vestry for prayer and for transacting business." In 1827 we read of quarterly prayer meetings. In 1830 the prayer meeting committee recommended the second and third Fridays, "notwithstanding we have now as many meetings as we can attend. It will take considerable time and require some little self denial." In 1833 the prayer meetings of Tuesday were discontinued, and every Monday evening was to be used. The first for the Monthly Concert for Missions; the second for the Sunday School; the third a prayer meeting, and the fourth a meeting of the brethren for business. These notes show that the prayer meeting was not easily established. We infer that by the middle of the century it was an institution. In the pastorate of Mr. McKinley the second service on Sunday was usually a prayer meeting in the chapel.

Mrs. Amos Tappan, Dr. Buckminster's sister, in 1803 gathered the colored children at her house every Sunday afternoon for religious instruction. It was in reality Sunday School and continued for several years. Under Dr. Putnam who was a much interested friend Tappan as Superintendent, opened a Union Sabbath School in Jefferson Hall in 1818. This was among the earliest in the country. At a little later period each church began a school of its own and Mr. Tappan transferred his school to the gallery of the North Church. In time it moved on to the vestry, from which place it appealed, as it has often done since, for better quarters and for a larger interest on the part of the church. The latter part of the appeal is significant of the fact that the Sunday School was not recognized at first as an integral part of the life of the church.

Vestry and Chapel

It is evident that the new spirit and the new methods which were developing in the religious life of the churches could need something other than the old time meeting house. Indeed this new spirit is a restless spirit that will be content only with the refinements of the latter day parish house. As a first response, with the generous aid of John Langdon, a brick vestry was erected in 1837 on Pleasant Street, on the northeast available location. As early as 1842 the cramped quarters were a constant source of dissatisfaction. After much agitation, many delays and disappointments, the gift by Miss Mary Rogers of a suitable lot on Middle Street enabled the church to realize its hope in the chapel of 1871, described with the hope that its possession may unite the hearts of its members, and enlist them more firmly in the Master's cause." The report of Marcellus Stafford for the building committee, the resolutions and the Warden's address are so full of congratulation and felicitation that it is evident that the common effort and sacrifice involved in securing the building united all hearts in one. In 1906 the inadequate building at the rear of the chapel was torn down and a parish house covering all the available land was built, the gift of Mrs. Martha J. Lord of $2,000 making possible the undertaking. The building, while serving well the social life of the church, is already crowded by the children who gather on Sunday. In itself the location of these buildings is most desirable, but the distance from the church building involves such obvious disadvantages that one could wish that the old church had present possession of some of the contiguous plots.

OPPOSED TO ALL PROHIBITION

New York, Nov. 30.—"There'll be no regulation of skirt lengths, no ban on bare knees, no outcry against the bobbing of tresses or the parking of corsets by her employes when Miss Annie Mathews takes over on January 1 the office to which she has just been elected as register of the County of New York—the richest political plum that has ever fallen into the lap of a woman in New York, if not in the entire United States.

Not that the $12,000-a-year register-elect hasn't very decided ideas on clothes and all the allied arts so precious to women. Indeed, she has spent the greater part of her 40-odd years studying the clothes problem, first as dressmaker, then a designer and finally as an importing modiste.

But she has even more decided ideas on the question of personal liberty. "I am opposed to all prohibition," she said.

"It is impossible to make women of men amenable to legislation. The human race can be improved only by education that will make them appreciate the good and the artistic.

"If any of my young women employes ask for my advice on clothes, I shall give it. And the most important thing I will tell them is to wear something appropriate for the occasion. A woman's business attire or house attire certainly should be simple.

Busy herself at the time receiving congratulations at her campaign headquarters, Miss Mathews office emphasized her formula. A plain blue serge dress, softened at the throat by a bit of embroidered linen collar, black high shoes. No jewelry. Copper colored hair simply coiffed.

Skirt lengths, bobbed hair, the question of corsets or none," she went on, with a twinkle from behind her pince-nez glasses, "are largely matters of taste—and of figure. All this talk about depravity among young women makes me a bit weary. I believe the young people are as good as young people ever were.

Of course there are and always have been extremists. But—well, I don't think I will be troubled with these, for I deal with a great deal about character by the clothes one wears. Yes, even the standardized clothes of men.

Miss Mathews enters on her new job of keeping the county's deeds, mortgages and leases with but one preconceived idea—that there shall be no prejudice either for or against any of her 150 employes because they happen to be women.

most thrilling and instructive pageant on "The India Mass Movement" will be presented in the Methodist church auditorium by Dr. Melville T. Osborne for 27 years a Missionary in India.

Dr. Osborne, a man of rare dramatic talent, takes the leading part. He will be assisted by three others who fill important roles, and by a chorus of about 30 young people, all dressed in the native costumes of India.

This is a wonderful presentation of real life in India today.

It offers an hour and a half of stirring, entertaining, amusing, and gripping moments from start to finish.

RAILROAD NOTES

Dispatchers Working Here

The Boston and Maine is temporarily dispatching trains between Newburyport and Portland from the telegraph office at the Portsmouth depot on account of the loss of through wires. Dispatchers Merrill & Morrill of the Boston office are handling the work with the assistance of regular operator Wallace.

Dispatchers are also working at Dover and Rochester depot.

Off the Track

The navy yard workmen's train was delayed on the return trip to Portsmouth this morning owing to one of the cars leaving the track while the train was in the yard.

Cancel Freight Service

The Maine Central railroad cancelled nearly all its freight service for a time on Monday owing to the storm.

Hearing at Rochester

The hearing before the New Hampshire Public Service Commission to act upon the petition of the Dover, Somersworth & Rochester Street Railway Company to discontinue its service between Central and Strafford squares, also a petition from the City Council for the removal of the tracks north of the Stone Bridge on North Main street, was held in Rochester Council chamber on Tuesday.

The road officials claim that the section of the road in question does not pay, and that the roads poor finances handling would not allow the company to operate it.

The remonstrants claim that if the tracks were laid for the accommodation of the public, and if removed they would never be replaced; also that when the proposed bridge across the Cocheco River is built the electric cars will be needed to convey the public via Strafford square to the Dominicus Hanson Public park and Playground.

COUNTY Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Recently there have been organized in Exeter two new Camp Fires. One is in the Methodist church under the leadership of Mrs. C. D. Mudgett and the other is under leadership of Miss Leona Page.

On Saturday night, Nov. 26, the No Hampton Y. M. C. A. held a very successful Parlor and Soft Dance. Although the weather interfered with the attendance somewhat, a fine supper was served and an excellent time enjoyed by those present. This is the first of a series of banquets to be held this winter in the county. Mr. Charles S. Bates of Exeter was the speaker of the evening and his remarks were interesting and instructive and appreciated by his listeners. The County Secretary acting as toastmaster called for three cheers by the boys for the fathers. These cheers were followed by speeches from the fathers and also from students of various schools and colleges who were home on their Thanksgiving recess. The supper was served by the boys and consisted of baked beans, brown bread, rolls, pickles pies and cocoa. This newly organized Y. M. C. A. is progressing splendidly. Quite a few of the boys have registered for the Nashua Boys' Conference.

Some new features are entering into the Older Boys' Conference this year at Nashua, Dec. 2, 3 and 4. Dr. W. C. Coleman of New York city will be one of the speakers on Friday and Sunday afternoon. The State Industrial School band will lead the parade on Friday night preceding the banquet. Ralph D. Paine of Durham will be the speaker at the Banquet. Saturday will be devoted to Sectional Conferences, mass games at the Textile Field and an address by Rev. John T. Dallas of Hanover. A leaders' luncheon will be held at 5 p. m. Saturday. Charles R. Scott will be the speaker. Mr. Scott has recently returned from a year around the world studying Boy Life. At 7.30 Saturday evening, Foot Ball night will be observed when men from Dartmouth, Harvard and Princeton will speak on College Athletics. This will be followed by an illustrated lecture "Wild Life in the North Country" by Prof. Leland Griggs, Hanover. Rev. William Porter Niles of Nashua will have charge of the Sunday afternoon meeting and Mr. Scott will speak in the evening service on "Boys the World Around."

Rockingham County will send about fifty boys to the Nashua Older Boys' Conference.

AT THE THEATRES

GOLDEN RULE CIRCLE SALE A SUCCESS

A sale of home cooked food, fancy work and aprons was held by the Golden Rule Circle of King's Daughters Tuesday afternoon from two-thirty to five o'clock, and was most successful. Despite the bad weather and hard travelling there were a good number of patrons and about twenty-five dollars was cleared from the sale. The tables looked most attractive and as soon as the sale opened were well surrounded with wouldbe purchasers.

At the home cooked food table a delicious assortment of good things was displayed to please all. There were roasted cakes of various kinds, fancy rolls, delicious doughnuts, coffee and bread. Mrs. Dora French was chairman of this table.

At the candy table was a goodly supply of home made confections, including fudge, chocolate creams and peppermints, creamy walnuts, stuffed dates and other varieties. Mrs. Charles A. Taylor was chairman of the candy table.

Aprons of many kinds were on sale at a table in general charge of Mrs. Joy Bean. There were gaudy aprons and the serviceable kitchen styles for ladies use. The patrons were many and the stock was soon sold.

On the fancy work table were numerous dainty articles suitable for Christmas gifts which at once attracted purchasers. Mrs. Cleone H. Davis in general charge.

The Junior King's Daughters had a table at the sale and here were sold fancy articles and home made candy. Mrs. J. W. Barrett was in general charge assisted by a group of young nieces.

Mrs. C. Melville Akerman, leader of the King's Daughters, was in general charge of the whole affair.

OLD AGE, HIS MARK!

Oliver Wendell Holmes, by the charming discoveries of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows. We can detect the first traces of this sign by plane just at plate.

When a woman suffers from headache, nervous depression, discouragement, dizzy spells, and those admonitory pangs so common to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine. What better medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proven the most reliable remedy for these troubles?

HOSPITAL GUILD

The next meeting of the Hospital Guild will be held in the North Church chapel on Friday, December 2 from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Bristol Bench Coffee will be served by Troop No. 21, Mrs. S. G. McCulloch, capt.

Every woman in Portsmouth is invited to the meeting.

Buy Furniture Now!

This is an absolutely unselfish piece of advice from Margeson Brothers. Whether you deal with us or with any one of the several other good Portsmouth houses, do not continue to put off buying, thinking that prices are coming down.

Prices have already come down, good people, so far as home furnishings are concerned. While we are not supposed to publish this information, the writer has inside advices that are unquestionable to the effect that a number of leading furniture factories have been operating at a loss to fill contracts during the past few months, and that when the Grand Rapids market opens in January, it will positively show an advance instead of a decline.

Go to your dealer; look him straight in the face; believe what he says, and if you find what you want, buy it, now! Certainty if you come to Margeson Brothers you may deal with confidence.

THE STORE WHERE LOOKING IS NO OBLIGATION TO BUY!
